- In the Pilot Project the Registered Nurses would not be required to supervise in larger facilities
- The projected sunset is 2011
- Medication errors are lower with Qualified Medication Aides because their sole responsibility is strictly limited to the administration of drugs
- The Qualified Medication Aide cannot administer the first dosage of any new medication
- Insulin and epinephrine are the only injectibles that a Qualified Medication Aide can administer
- Education requirements remain a Certified Nursing Assistant plus two additional quarters to become a Qualified Medication Aide.

Qualified Medication Aides will only be providing care in Community Living Arrangements, with the pilot project in Metropolitan Atlanta. The only school to offer this pilot program will be Atlanta Technical College.
